Kelsi Dyer hopes that her passion for travel will lead to a professional path. Upon graduation this spring, the Political Science major plans to pursue a job in the State Department that allows her to explore the world and experience diverse culture. It is an ambition that stems from her experiences in countries such as Brazil, where she spent a semester as an intern at the Embassy to Brazil.

"I love to be there as Brazil continues developing. They have so much possibility and such an opportunity to expand, both with their technology and with their agriculture, and I would like to know that I had a helping hand."

Dyer's selfless motives are rooted in her college experience. As part of the first Arizona Assurance cohort, she has grown with the AZA Program, taking advantage of its multitudinous opportunities while simultaneously offering assistance to her peers. Her greatest ambition is to utilize her knowledge of Portuguese and her desire to build cultural bridges to become the Ambassador to Brazil.

"It has kept me on top of my school work and academics, because as a mentor I want to do well to be a good role model--and to be a good role model you really have to keep up on yourself as much as you are helping other people.

Dyer's gratefulness towards Arizona Assurance, combined with her experiences in the program, has inspired her to continue to give back and encompass diversity into her future career.

"Arizona Assurance accomplished one of the best things that has happened to me, and I can't imagine going to the University of Arizona, or any university, without the opportunity to be part of a program like this."
